Subject: Proposed Legislation Ill conceived

As a Muskego resident who historically votes Republican and served as an _____, I was disheartened to read in today's edition of the Milwaukee Journal that the Legislature feels compelled to pull a North Carolina-type action and pass laws to weaken the incoming Governor. There is no need for that and imagine what Republicans would have said eight years ago. The people have voted and clearly expressed a desire for change. One of the Legislative leaders is quoted as saying the people want split government. I believe that is probably true. Let it work like it was meant to work not with handcuffs on the incoming Governor. If it makes sense to pass then after the first of the year the Executive and Legislative branches can discuss and enact it into law if it makes sense to do it. This is how split government works. Don't assume you know what the people want. The people voted for a change. Not the status quo. This is a revengeful and mean-spirited act.

I do not want to see ill-conceived legislation rammed through as was done in the beginning of the Walker Administration with Act 10. We have a highly polarized citizenry. Don't add to it and don't stack the deck. Remember the values you once may have had. Paying an unnecessary $7 million for a Spring election is wasteful and against the counsel of many County Clerks. If Justice Kelly is meant to be elected then let the process play out with the rules we have in place.

I urge you to re-think this ill-conceived Legislation. We are better than this.

Respectfully,

Muskego, WI
